

The Princess Fairy Kiwi's Ball

By

Sophie

Once upon a time there was a city called Kiwi.

Only fairy kiwi birds lived there.

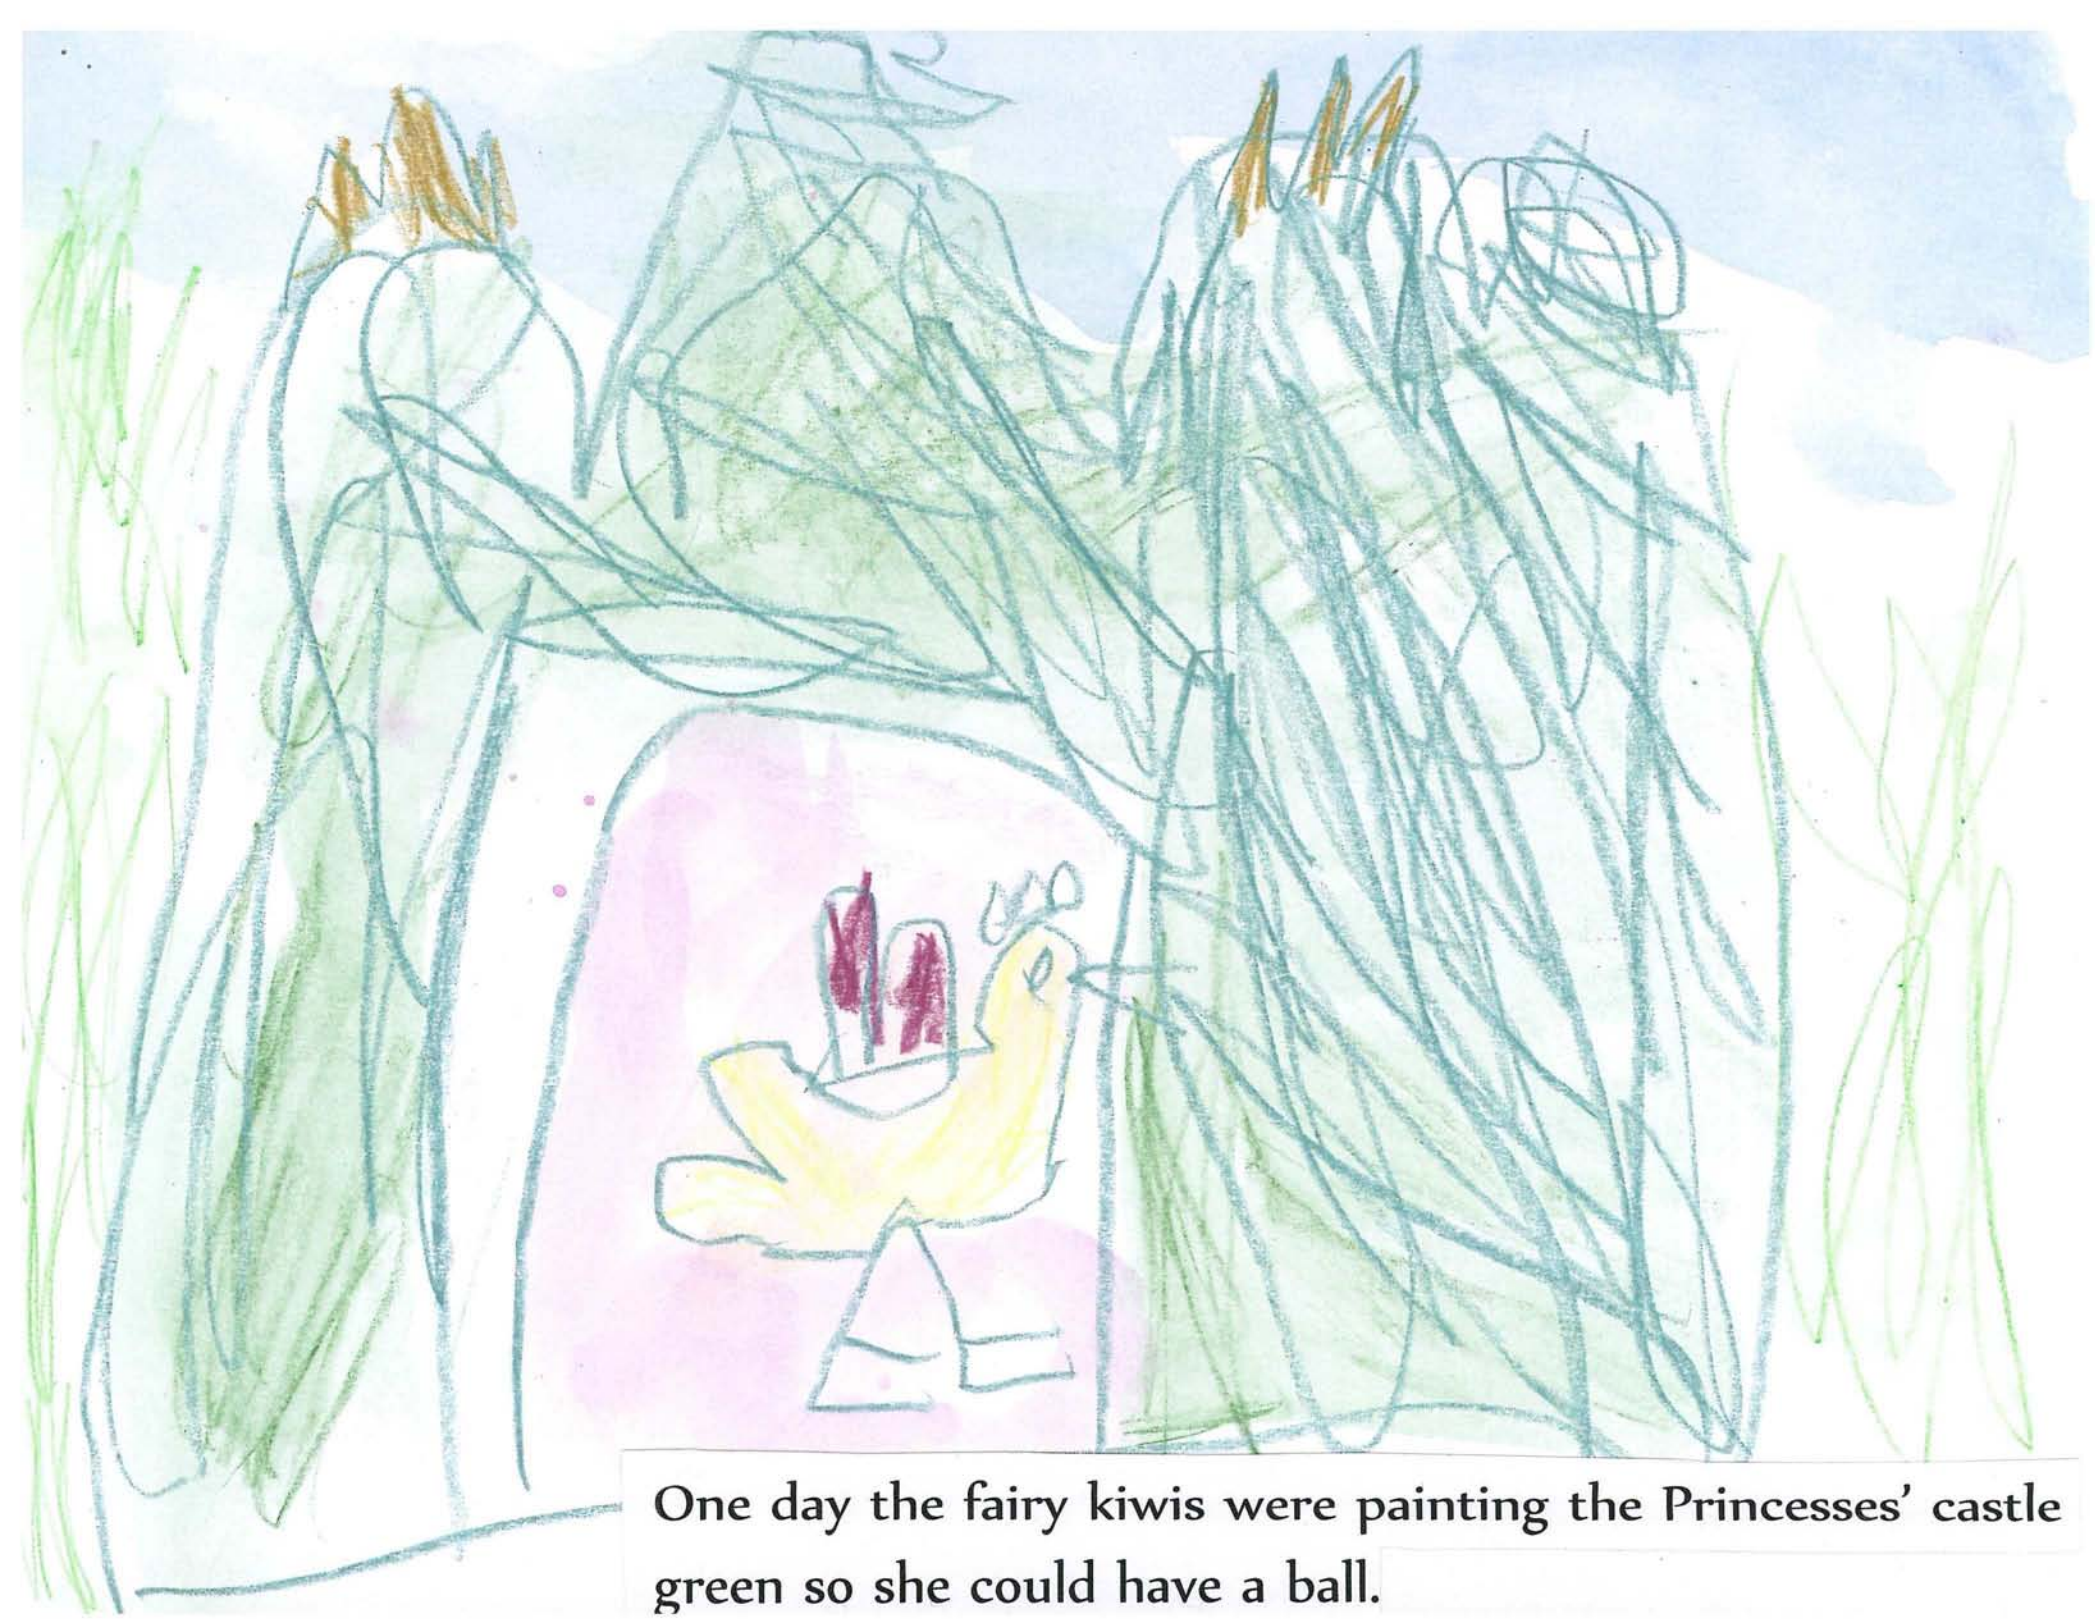

Fairy kiwis are special, they can fly.

They were very helpful fairy kiwis.

They gave little girls bouquets of flowers and warned them about poison ivy.

One day the fairy kiwis were painting the Princesses' castle green so she could have a ball.

They would eat a feast, and have a big dance, and then go home and go to bed.

The Princess invited all the humans that they know and all the fairy kiwis. The magic in the invitation makes the humans shrink weensy-sized. They all wear their most beautiful and sparkly gowns.

They eat frutti-tutti kiwi nuggets and shortbread for dessert. The dance goes on and on until moonlight.

Then the Princess gives them a carriage ride home. Her unicorn takes off with the carriage. She loops and swoops and loops up high in the air even upside-down. She goes higher and then does a gentle landing.

The humans go back to normal size and then they go to bed. They dream about dancing and unicorns. They keep telling their mommies and daddies that unicorns are real, but they don't believe it.
